After Hurricane Charlie (August 04), we contracted with Don Teets Construction to rebuild our seriously hurricane damaged home. At the time, it was hard to find any contractor and we were lucky to find one who turned out to be such a good one. We were able to move back into the house in April 05.

Teets Construction was a good reasonable partner to work with in a very stressful time for us.

Much of the damage was greater than first estimated by the Insurance Company. Teets Construction worked with the Insurance Company to raise the amount the Insurance Company paid us to cover the actual repair. In doing this they saved us more than $50,000.

Because of the times, Teets Construction had trouble with reliable subcontractors and manpower in general during the rebuilding. This caused delays but they worked to correct any problems caused by these subcontractors, minimize delays and to make it transparent to us.

During the rebuilding, we asked that some upgrades / remodels be added to the project. These were added with no problems.

One problem that occurs with many contractors is finishing up the last 1% of the project. That was NOT a problem with Teets Construction. They corrected all problems on the final 'punch list' in a timely manor.

Thank You to Don, Mary and your whole team!
